

Beekrumsing Ramallah.

A man of Principles.

Beekrumsing Ramallah, a man of Principles was launched in 2006 and is the first AGTF biography concerning an eminent personality who militated for the preservation of the Aapravasi Ghat World Heritage Property. It provides detailed information on the life and times of B. Ramlallah which spans most of the 20th century. This publication documents and analyses the long and remarkable carrier of Mr. Ramlallah as a teacher, a journalist/ newspaper editor, as a social worker, and as a member of parliament.

A special Beekrumsing Ramallah, a man of Principles is his long and successful campaign of more than three decades for the recognition and preservation of the immigration depot or the landing place of our immigrant ancestors. It shows how through its efforts he managed to get the late Shreemati Indira Gandhi to visit the site in 1970, was able to get Sir Seewoosagar Ramgoolam to unveil a commemorative plaque and the site decreed national monument in 1987. At the same time this publication highlights one of his most important achievements which is the holding of the annual Yaj on the 02nd November which has become an important tradition to honour the memory of the immigrant ancestors.
